

Public schools benefited at annual fundraiser

Thursday, 29 October 2009 20:25 - Last Updated Thursday, 05 November 2009 21:09

On Monday, Oct. 19, the Harrison Educational Foundation (HEF) held its annual fundraiser at Westchester Country Club to benefit the Harrison public schools. The outing, titled “Swing for Science,” included a tournament for golfers followed by a cocktail reception and dinner. The focus of this year’s event was to support major grants for additions and improvements to science programs throughout the Harrison School District. The Foundation recently donated $150,000 to the high school’s new black box planetarium theater. “Through the generous support and participation of members in our community and corporate sponsors “Swing for Science” was a huge success,” said Stephen Lichtenauer, HEF’s chairman. “The Foundation is now in a great position to fund some outstanding science projects at Harrison schools in the coming year.”

For more information on the Foundation or to make a contribution, visit www.harrisoned.org.